

GetDismissed.com Writes the Book on Fighting Traffic Tickets

The new book, GetDismissed, No Brainwork Required, It's That Simple, is the ultimate guide to getting your traffic ticket dismissed without having to go to court and the companion to the GetDismissed mobile application.

Westlake Village, CA (July 16th, 2015) – GetDismissed.com, California's newest, traffic ticket fighting service, has now put years and years of "how to fight a traffic ticket" knowledge into a book available on Amazon. The book serves as a companion piece to its popular free App, available through the Apple Store or Google Play.

The new book, subtitled No Brainwork Required, It's That Simple, is the ultimate guide to getting your traffic ticket dismissed without having to go to court. In addition to specific detailed steps on how best to fight a ticket, the book also offers advice on how to avoid cell phone, speeding and numerous other ticket types, how to spot a phony red light camera (they are out there), what to do when you are pulled over, and how to improve driving in foggy weather. The book ends with an enlightening section on traffic ticket myths and a comprehensive glossary. The book is ideal for all drivers, especially new drivers.

GetDismissed.com President, Steven Miller added, "There are over 5.2 million traffic tickets issued for infractions every year in California, but only seven percent of those tickets are ever contested. So, with our team of attorneys, engineers, and designers, along with our marketing agency, we sought out a way to simplify the ticket fighting process in California in order to remove the frustration associated with fighting a ticket in court. Our goal was to create an easy to use system that alleviates that frustration. At the same time, we wanted to offer the most cost effective way to contest and dismiss a traffic ticket ever seen in the state of California. We believe GetDismissed meets that goal. And now we've put all of that knowledge into a simple to read, and easy to understand and use book."
